Two Held For Theft, Shooting

Preliminary hearing will be held Friday in South Bay Municipal Court for two suspects picked up in connection with the shooting of an elderly Lomita maintenance man.

Booked Thursday on suspicion of burglary and assault with intent to commit murder were Ted Raguse, 34, of 874 1/2 Via Wanda, Long Beach, and Neil Keith Rogers, 39, of 501 E. Sandison St., Wilmington.

They are being held in Los Angeles County Jail in lieu of $31,250 bail.

The two unemployed machinists are thought to be the men who held up C. J. Meadway, CPA, an accounting firm at 2521 Srenshaw Blvd., Monday, Feb. 26.

MAINTENANCE man Milton F. Fairchild of 24725 Pennsylvania Ave., Lomita, was on duty in the building at 6:30 a.m. when the two allegedly broke in.

The 70-year-old caretaker is now listed in fair condition at Little Company of Mary Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery.

Fairchild told police he discovered the men taking business machines out the rear door and said, "What are you doing inside the building?"

THE TWO suspects then ran toward him. One of the men, believed to be Raguse, struck Fairchild in the face with a chrome pistol. The suspect swung a second time but Fairchild said he dodged the blow, knocking the suspect in the face with a rooted plant.

At this point the suspect shot Fairchild in the chest, sending him to the floor. Both suspects then began kicking the elderly victim.

When the two fled, Fairchild managed to get up and walk to a nearby service station, leaving a 90-foot trail of blood. Police said the bullet passed clear through Fairchild's body.

Witnesses said the two burglars escaped in an old, beige station wagon.

Spokesmen for C. J. Meadway said the men escaped with a few small business machines.
